Well before President Trump took office, the conversation about gender had been fiercely reignited on the campaign trail. Beyond his personal misogynist scandals, there's also the legal battle over transgender men and women serving in the armed forces. The New Museum is taking on the issue of gender as it's been shaped into a tool and a weapon with its new exhibit, "Trigger." 22

TRUMP 'NOT HAPPY' WITH PRICE'S PRIVATE TRAVEL

1 President Donald Trump said he was "not happy" with Health and Human Services Secretary Tom Price amid reports he used expensive private charter jets to travel for government business rather than cheaper commercial flights. Asked if he would fire Price, Trump told reporters: "We'll see." The House of Representatives Oversight and Government Reform Committee opened an investigation into travel by top officials. The panel wrote to the White House and 24 federal agencies requesting information about senior officials' aircraft use. Asked if he had confidence in Price, Trump said: "I am looking at that very closely. I am not happy with it. I will tell you I am not happy with it." Price has taken at least two dozen private charter flights since May at a cost to taxpayers of about $300,000. For more, see page 14.

OBAMA CRIED AFTER DROPPING MALIA OFF

2 Parents tend to get teary-eyed when they send their kids off to college, and President Barack Obama is no exception. The former commander-in-chief recently dropped his daughter Malia off in Cambridge to start her journey at Harvard University, which turned out to be quite the emotional experience. While speaking at a fundraiser in honor of former Vice President Joe Biden's late son Beau on Monday, President Obama opened up about seeing his child start her college career. "I dropped off Malia at college, and I was saying to Joe and Jill [Biden] that it was a little bit like open-heart surgery, and I was proud that I did not cry in front of her," Obama said. "But on the way back, the Secret Service was off, looking straight ahead, pretending they weren't hearing me as I sniffled and blew my nose. It was rough."

OTTO WARMBIER DIED OF OXYGEN-STARVED BRAIN

4 An American student imprisoned in North Korea for 17 months died from lack of oxygen and blood to the brain, according to an coroner's report released on Wednesday. Otto Warmbier's death on June 19 was due to an unknown injury that occurred more than a year before his death, according to Hamilton County Coroner's Office investigator John Hatfield and the coroner's report dated Sept. 11. The University of Virginia student was held by North Korea from January 2016 until his release on June 15. Warmbier, 22, returned to the United States in a coma. Both the investigator and the coroner's report cited complications of chronic deficiency of oxygen and blood supply to the brain in Warmbier's death. Only an external examination of the body rather than a full autopsy was completed at the request of Warmbier's family.

FACEBOOK DELETED FAKE ACCOUNTS IN GERMANY

5 Facebook said on Wednesday its efforts to fight fake news during Germany's national elections included taking down tens of thousands of fake profiles in the final month of the campaign. Richard Allan, Facebook's vice president of public policy for Europe, Middle East Africa, said the Silicon Valley-based company mounted an array of efforts to ensure the social media network was not used as a platform to manipulate public opinion. "These actions did not eliminate misinformation entirely in this election — but they did make it harder to spread, and less likely to appear in people's news feeds," the Facebook executive said in a statement. News feed is the central feature in user profiles whereby they can see updates from people they follow.

Metro test-drives Cadillac's new hands-free Super Cruise technology

Because you should always take your eyes off the road when driving a Cadillac worth more than $71,000.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@NikkiMMascali
nikki.mascali@metro.us

As a (non-native) New Yorker, I obviously don't drive anymore — nor do I miss the annoyances that come with owning a car.

But I do miss two things about being behind the wheel: singing along with the radio at the top of my lungs and cruising down a long stretch of highway.

Luckily, last week I got the chance to do the latter thanks to an invite from Cadillac to test out its new Super Cruise technology, which is available in the 2018 CT6 that's hitting dealerships this week.

Super Cruise was in development for five-plus years and is the "next level up from cruise control," said Cadillac CT6's Launch & Lifecycle Marketing Manager Eric Angeloro.

Cadillac is touting the technology as the "first true hands-free driving technology for the freeway," and it was like nothing I ever experienced as I took a joyride with Angeloro from Cadillac's global headquarters in SoHo down the New Jersey Turnpike.

First of all, Super Cruise isn't autopilot. Nor is it carte blanche to catch up on your texts, emails or the latest episode of "This Is Us."

You might not have your hands on the steering wheel or your foot on the pedals, but your eyes must still remain on the road for all but a few seconds before the system starts sassing you (but I'll get to that).

Super Cruise becomes available once you have engaged adapted cruise control on what the automaker deems a "divided, limited-access freeway" with defined on- and off-ramps. The car will know it's on such a road thanks to GPS and LiDAR mapping data, which mapped 130,000 miles of highways in the U.S. and Canada.

When the Super Cruise icon on the dash turned white, I turned the technology on via its steering wheel button, and Angeloro encouraged me to sit back and relax.

Since I often used cruise control in my trusty old Ford Focus, taking my foot off the pedals was easy, but the steering wheel? Not so much. Once I worked up the nerve, the car took over, never once veering from the center of my lane, even as the road curved.

After I felt comfortable, it was time to look away from the road to test the CT6's Driver Attention System. This took a bit of bravery as, you know, the key to driving is keeping your eyes on the road.

But there I was glancing, at first quickly, out the driver's side window until the car's first warning came, and Super Cruise's steering wheel bar went from solid green to flashing. I merely touched the wheel again, and all was OK.

This is the Cadillac CT6 that Metro reporter Nikki M. Mascali test-drove down the New Jersey Turnpike. NIKKI M. MASCALI

A red bar means the driver must touch the steering wheel — and return their eyes to the road when using the CT6's Super Cruise. CADILLAC

How did the car know I wasn't paying attention, you ask? There is a tiny camera mounted on the steering wheel that tracks a driver's eye movements and head position. The camera only turns on when Super Cruise is engaged and does not record.

On the way back to the city, I pushed Super Cruise to the max, looking out the window until the steering wheel bar turned red, my seat vibrated and a voice prompt told me to take control, which I did — and was then locked out of Super Cruise for the remainder of the ride. (The function would become available again when the car was turned off and on.)

Had I not taken control, all of the above would've occurred and the CT6 would've put its hazards on, slowed itself down gradually in its lane and come to a stop. If at that point a driver doesn't make contact with the car, it will alert OnStar to send help.

"Imagine if an emergency happened without this," Angeloro said. Um, no thank you.

Despite locking myself out of Super Cruise, Angeloro said I was the best test driver he ever rode with, and I didn't even treat him to my singing.

Super Cruise comes standard on CT6 Platinum, which starts at $85,290. It is also available as a $5,000 option for the CT6 Premium Luxury, which starts at $71,905.

"While we cannot comment on future products, we are very proud of Super Cruise and view it as a stepping stone for future technology," Chief Engineer Lydon Lie said when asked if it will roll out on other Cadillac and GM models.

You can take your hands off the wheel, your feet off the pedals and your eyes (briefly) off the road in a Cadillac CT6 thanks to Super Cruise. CADILLAC

Student fatally stabbed at Bronx school, suspect in custody: NYPD

A 15-year-old was killed and a 16-year-old injured in the stabbing at a school in East Tremont.

A suspect was in custody after a 15-year-old student was fatally stabbed in the chest at a Bronx school Wednesday morning, officials said.

A 16-year-old student who was also stabbed in the chest remains in critical but stable condition, NYPD Chief of Detectives Robert Boyce said at an afternoon press conference in which the department, Mayor Bill de Blasio and New York City Schools Chancellor Carmen Farina shared preliminary information about the incident.

The stabbing occurred just before 11 a.m. on the fifth floor of the Urban Assembly School for Wildlife Conservation at 2024 Mohegan Ave. in the borough's East Tremont neighborhood.

"We believe this argument has been going on for maybe two weeks now, and it escalated today after some back and forth in the classroom," Boyd said.

The incident occurred about halfway through third period, and there were between 15 and 20 other students in the room at the time, he added.

The 18-year-old suspect left the classroom after the stabbing and was immediately confronted by a counselor, who confiscated the knife, which Boyd described as a 3-inch spring-action switchblade.

STUDENT KILLED IN A NYC PUBLIC SCHOOL FOR FIRST TIME IN NEARLY 25 YEARS, REPORTS STATED

The student then took himself to the assistant principal's office, where police were called.

"He made statements to us explaining what happened, which I will not go into right now," Boyd said, but did add that there has been "nothing on record" between the three students.

The 15-year-old victim, who has not yet been identified, was taken to St. Barnabas Hospital and pronounced dead on arrival, Boyd confirmed. He said the second unidentified victim is in stable but critical condition at the time of the press conference.

Grades six through 12 attend Urban Assembly School for Wildlife Conservation, which shares a building with PS 67, an elementary school. There are about 1,100 total students in the building, Farina said.

Officials confirmed that the school did not have metal detectors as a previous study "determined that it did not need them."

While that is now under review, de Blasio said there "will be immediate random screening with detectors and additional school safety personnel will be brought in starting tomorrow."

"It has been many, many years since we lost a child in a school," he added. "We will redouble our efforts to ensure every child is safe."

Farina said students were sent home with a letter letting their parents know what happened and what will happen as the investigation continues. She also said grief counselors were on site for students and faculty.

"Every parent has the right to expect that when they send their children to school in the morning they will come back at 3 o'clock and in very good shape," she said. "Unfortunately some families will not be feeling that security."

Donald Trump speaks during an event to discuss tax reform. GETTY IMAGES

Trump tax proposal slashes rates on businesses, the rich; fuels deficit worries

Trump called the plan the largest tax cut in U.S. history and "historic tax relief to the American people."

President Donald Trump on Wednesday proposed the biggest U.S. tax overhaul in three decades, offering to cut taxes for most Americans but prompting criticism that the plan favors the rich and companies and could add trillions of dollars to the deficit.

The proposal, which the Republican president said was aimed at helping working people, creating jobs and making the tax code more simple and fair, faces an uphill battle in Congress with Trump's own party divided and Democrats hostile.

The plan would lower corporate income tax rates, cut taxes for small businesses, reduce the top income tax rate for individuals and scrap some widely used tax breaks including one that benefits people in high-tax states dominated by Democrats.

Forged during months of talks among Trump's aides and top Republicans in Congress, the plan contained scant details about how to pay for the cuts without fueling deficits. It must be turned into detailed legislation by the Republican-led congressional tax-writing committees.

"This is a once-in-a-generation opportunity," President Donald Trump said. "We want tax reform that is pro-growth, pro-jobs, pro-worker, pro-family and yes, tax reform that is pro-American."

Trump, a real estate mogul-turned-politician who promised big tax cuts as a candidate last year, said earlier on Wednesday when asked by reporters that he personally would not stand to gain financially from the proposal.

"I think there's very little benefit for people of wealth," said Trump, who has refused to make public his own tax returns unlike many of his White House predecessors.

Republicans have produced no major legislative successes since Trump took office in January even though they control the White House and both chambers of Congress.

The Republicans' top legislative priority, an overhaul of the U.S. healthcare system, collapsed in the Senate on Tuesday, while another key item on Trump's wish list, infrastructure spending, has yet to materialize.

A comprehensive rewrite of the U.S. tax code has eluded lawmakers for decades. The last one was passed in 1986.

The White House said that under the proposal typical middle-class families would have less of their income subject to federal income tax. Trump noted that the first $12,000 earned by an individual and the first $24,000 by a married couple would be tax-free.

The plan would lower the top individual rate from to 35 percent from 39.6 percent.

It foresees a 20 percent corporate income tax rate, down from the current 35 percent but not as low as Trump's initial demand for 15 percent.

Companies in the United States pay high taxes by global standards but many of them pay much less than the headline rate due to loopholes and tax breaks.

"Under this plan, the wealthiest Americans and wealthiest corporations make out like bandits while middle-class Americans are left holding the bag," said Chuck Schumer, the top Senate Democrat.

Republicans hold a thin 52-48 majority in the Senate and may need some Democrats on board to win passage. But Democrats said the plan would expand the federal deficit in order to deliver tax cuts to wealthy Americans rather than the middle-class families that Trump and Republicans say they are trying to help.

"If this framework is all about the middle class, then Trump Tower is middle-class housing," said Sen. Ron Wyden, the top Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee.

Kevin Brady, chairman of the tax-writing House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee, said he expected tax legislation to be passed by the end of this year.

House Speaker Paul Ryan, a Republican, said, "This is a now-or-never moment." REUTERS

Five-alarm fire spreads through Bronx building with history of complaints

Nearly 200 firefighters battled the Bronx fire Wednesday morning, the FDNY said.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT

A five-alarm fire on Wednesday morning blazed through the top of a Bronx apartment building that has a history of resident complaints and Department of Building violations.

The fire department responded to a call around 6:30 a.m. of a fire at 1920 Walston Ave. in Mount Hope, an FDNY spokesman said.

The fire was between the roof and ceiling and within the walls on the top floor of the 6-story building, the spokesman said. It took "a lot of manpower" to battle the blaze, he added.

In total, 44 units from the fire department and EMT were on the scene, and nearly 200 firefighters were involved in the effort. Eight firefighters and four civilians received minor injuries.

Officials didn't immediately identify what sparked the flames, and the cause is currently under investigation by the fire marshal.

The building seems to have a spotty record, with more than 60 complaints and 29 violations, according to the Department of Buildings.

Many elderly and disabled people live in the building, according to the records. Multiple complaints were filed last summer concerning the elevator malfunctioning and trapping residents.

One complaint noted that the elevator was necessary in the building because "there are a lot of elderly people that cannot make it up the stairs." Another mentioned that the elevator was out for two weeks, specifically affecting at least one resident who "is disabled and needs assistance."

Issues with the elevator stemmed back to at least 2006, records showed. The building also saw complaints about a collapsing roof and "rotted out" support beams from the early 2000s.

In 2005, one caller was concerned by exposed electrical wires that were "sparking" in their bedroom. In 1998, a caller said that the building was in "deplorable condition."

The building management, listed as 1920 Walton LLC, could not immediately be reached for comment. The listed phone number was a wrong number.

There are 84 units in the building, according to Property Shark. FDNY Commissioner Daniel Nigro told DNAinfo that many of the residents on the top floors won't be able to immediately return after the fire.

"There will be a number of families homeless tonight, unfortunately," he said.

BRONX SHOOTING

Bronx dad fatally shot in front of teenage son

A 39-year-old Bronx father was fatally shot Tuesday evening as he stood outside his Kingsbridge home with his teenage son, police said.

Pedro Almonte Sanchez and his 15-year-old son were standing outside Sanchez's white SUV in front of 85 Strong St. just before 6 p.m. when a group of people on bicycles rode by and began firing.

Sanchez was struck in the head and was unconscious and unresponsive when emergency personnel arrived. He was pronounced dead at the scene, police said.

An unidentified 25-year-old man was also injured when a bullet grazed his head, and he was taken to Montefiore Medical Center.

Officials told CBS2 that it was not clear who the shooters were targeting, but sources told them that Sanchez's son may have clashed with alleged gang members earlier in the day.

No arrests have been made at this time, and the investigation is ongoing, police said Wednesday morning. NIKKI M. MASCALI

Knee Arthritis Me

Cutting-Edge Knee Arthritis Treatments No

Now World-Class Regenerative Medicine, Stem Cell and More F

NY City - If you are reading this, I know a few things about you.

First, you suffer with knee arthritis pain.

And that pain is having a dramatic affect on your life.

The pain not only stops you from doing simply things like getting up and walking without discomfort...

It makes your entire life miserable.

Life's just not worth living this way

I also know you have tried many things.

Pain pills, steroid shots, exercise and probably some "wonder cures" you saw advertised on tv or the internet.

None of it worked

And every time you got your hopes up just a little, you were just massively disappointed. Again.

Because of this, you are skeptical. Very skeptical. And you deserve to be.

Because nothing is more depressing than living in constant pain and...

Not getting any REAL answers

You might even be faced with getting knee replacement surgery.

This is a scary thought. Am I right?

No one wants knee replacement surgery. And, even though it has advanced considerably in recent years, it is still a MAJOR procedure with a lot of painful rehabilitation... and risk.

And, although some people need knee replacement surgery... many who think they do... do not.

I think we can agree... it should always be the last resort. And it should not be done if there is a better option.

Now that we know each other a little better, let me ask you this...

After all you have been through, are you still open-minded enough to try a new and revolutionary knee arthritis treatment...

If it could help you... and...

If you could afford it?

I bet you are. That's why you are still reading. Right?

Well, what if there actually was a real medical treatment... that could help YOU.

Even better... what if there was a super advanced treatment the rich and famous (and professional athletes) have already been using... that actually has the potential to not only eliminate your knee arthritis pain... but possible heal it.

And probably best of all... what if this treatment that used to be WAY out of your price range is now affordable by just about anyone.

Sounds too good to be true?

It sure does.

But it's true, and in just a moment I'm going to prove it to you.

And with that proof, you will discover new hope for your knee arthritis pain that might change your life... in as little as 30 days.

Here's what this is all about:

I'm sure you've heard about stem cell therapy and the reports of how wonderful it is.

Everyone has.

I'm sure you also know that rich celebrities and athletes have the money and connection to get treatments the "average Joe" can't.

It's not fair... but it's just the way it is.

For example, some medical clinics charge over $10,000 per procedure... and insurance does not pay.

I don't know about you... but that's a lot of dough for average folks!

Now for something you do not know...

Thankfully, medical technology changes fast. And with these advances, doctors should and can charge much less for certain procedures...

IF THEY REALLY WANT TO HELP PEOPLE.

That's why a medical clinic located in New York, NYC Pain MD, has been absolutely FLOODED with knee, hip and shoulder arthritis sufferers.

They are offering a very advanced Lipogems cell procedure for arthritis and joint pain at a price almost anyone can afford.

And once the word got out they often were getting over 100 calls a day!

Excited? You should be. Because this is a real medical procedure that can possibly end your pain and suffering and give you your life back.... at a reasonable fee you can afford.

I told you this was going to get good. Really good.

What Exactly Is This Special Procedure?

Glad you asked.

The procedure is called "Lipogems" and here's how it can possible help you.

An Italian surgeon, Dr. Carlo Tremolada discovered a revolutionary way to naturally prepare stem cells and treat knee and many other arthritis ailments.

Taking a small amount of your own belly fat... his specialized technique separates the stem cells... and then precisely places the them right back into the arthritic and painful joint.

This is a very unique procedure that some experts feel is superior to others (like bone marrow) because of the number and quality of stem cells (MSCs)... not to mention doctors do not have to punch a hole in your bone. OUCH!

The best part is the results. After the stem cells are placed into the arthritic joint... they begin to do their "magic" within 5 to 10 days.

These stem cells (MSCs) stop inflammation and begin to heal the arthritis pain.

Let's be clear about this:

There is no drug or surgery that even comes close to doing what Lipogems cells (MSCs) can do when done precisely.

It even gets better... for you...

The doctors at NY Pain MD where personally trained in this Lipogems procedure by it's founder and leading expert, Dr. Carlo Tremolada.

They are getting incredible results with this cutting-edge medical procedure... and now... if you qualify... you can see if this treatment of the future can help your joint arthritis pain... right now.

And, obviously, for MUCH less than the $10,000 others charge.

You know, you're obviously really serious about finding an answer to your arthritis joint pain, possibly eliminating the pain and finally living and enjoying the life you really want... and I just want to take a moment to acknowledge you for that.

Most people never put aside their well deserved skepticism and take the time to educate themselves the way you have.

You are reading this admittedly lengthy message and you really have the commitment and determination to do this now.

That's another reason why you're perfect for this

It's specifically for people like you are open minded and took the time to get educated and who want to finally relieve their arthritis pain... because this treatment can possibly do that for you.

So, Here's What To Do Right Now

If you would like to find out if Lipogems can help you - you are invited in for a risk free no-obligation screening.

During this screening you will get a chance to ask questions and find out if you are a candidate for this advanced medical treatment - and what your best options are.

The screening is completely free and without obligation.

After your screening, you will breath a big sigh or relief knowing what your options are and the best way to deal with your pain.

If you are not sure - I know exactly how you feel. Arthritis pain is brutal. And it is hard to get straight answers.

So many patients felt the same way.

They told us they they had given up until they read some information just like this and they came in to see us.

Then their life changed so fast - it was incredible

Call our scheduling dept. today at 800-589-8160.

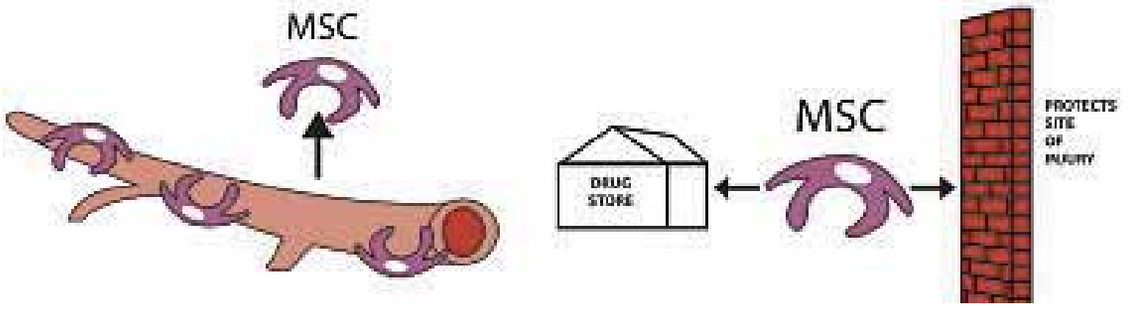
The worst thing that can happen is you find out you do not qualify and this treatment is not for you.

But what if we really can help you?

What if we really can get rid of some of all your pain?

What would that be worth you you?

If it is worth a small amount of your time - call us at: 800-589-8160.



Stem Cell "Magic" Not Just For Rich and Famous Anymore? When injury and diseases such as arthritis occur, MSCs (a type of stem cell) come off blood vessels and (1) protect the site of injury and (2) produce the exact amount of healing chemistry or "natural drugs" necessary to safely heal the injury. Hopefully, you can look forward to avoiding surgery and getting off the toxic medications.

23 neighborhoods vying for Amazon's new headquarters, New York City says

"No other city in North America has the space, the ingenuity or the energy we can offer Amazon," Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen said.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@NikkiMMascali
nikki.mascali@metro.us

It's been 20 days since Amazon opened bidding for its forthcoming "HQ2," a $5 billion "full equal" to its Seattle headquarters that will provide 50,000 jobs, and cities across North America — including New York City — are clamoring to be chosen.

We already told you last week that Bronx officials stated their case for HQ2 to call their borough home, but city officials announced Wednesday that more than two dozen proposals — representing 23 neighborhoods and more than 50 million square feet of space across the five boroughs — have been received.

"From the moment Amazon released its request for proposals, New York's real estate, business and community leaders have worked together to best position the city to win the company's second headquarters," Deputy Mayor Alicia Glen said in a statement. "Thanks to this collaborative effort, we now see the tremendous potential we have for development sites. No other city in North America has the space, the ingenuity or the energy we can offer Amazon."

New York definitely meets most of Amazon's criteria for HQ2 contenders, which includes a metropolitan locale with a population of at least one million, access to international airports, mass transit and the ability to provide at least 500,000 square feet of commercial space by 2019 — and up to 8 million beyond 2027.

New York City officials received more than two dozen bids for Amazon's HQ2 location from 23 neighborhoods across the five boroughs. GETTY IMAGES

There were more than 40 developers and organizations that responded with proposals, and many offered numerous site suggestions, officials said.

The city will evaluate the requests with state officials and present its proposal to Amazon by the company's Oct. 19 deadline. The location of HQ2 is slated to be announced sometime next year.

Even if New York is not chosen as the winning bid for HQ2, Amazon has already shown it hearts New York in recent weeks.

Just last Thursday, Gov. Andrew Cuomo announced the company will open a 359,000-square-foot administrative office in 5 Manhattan West in Hudson Yards. The office will bring with it 2,000 high-paying finance, sales, marketing and information technology jobs with an average salary of $100,000.

On Sept. 6, Amazon announced it would open New York state's first fulfillment center in Staten Island. More than 2,250 jobs will be created when the 855,000-square-foot facility opens in 2018.

Private jets chartered by HHS Secretary Tom Price weren't strictly for business

Just one day after the White House tried to distance itself from the controversy surrounding Health and Human Services Secretary Tom Price's use of government funds to pay for private planes, details about his not-so-strictly-business itinerary have emerged.

Since May, Price has chartered 26 private jets, costing taxpayers more than $400,000 under the guise he was traveling on business, but a new Politico report showed that Price might have been engaging in more pleasure than business.

After news of Price's exorbitant travel budget made headlines earlier this month, the Health and Human Services inspector general launched an investigation, President Donald Trump said his own administration was "looking into" the matter and White House Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders said the travel "wasn't White House approved,"

Tom Price has spent more than $400,000 in taxpayer money on private jets since May. WIKIMEDIA COMMONS prompting the secretary to pledge to stop traveling on private planes — at least until all investigations were handled.

Price's underlings tried to defend the secretary's use of taxpayer money to fund almost half a million in travels over just four months, saying, "This is Secretary Price, getting outside of D.C., making sure he is connected with the real American people," Charmaine Yoest, Price's assistant secretary for public affairs, told The Washington Post last week. "Wasting four hours in an airport and having the secretary cancel his event is not a good use of taxpayer money." Only not all of Price's travel focused on business.

On June 6, Price chartered a private jet to Nashville, Tennessee, where he owns a condo. Price took an hourlong tour of a medicine dispensary and spoke for no more than 20 minutes at a health summit. The cost of Price's travel? A whopping $17,760.

Federal travel regulations permit officials to charter private planes only if "no scheduled commercial airline service is reasonably available," where reasonable is understood to mean within a 24-hour period.

For Price's Nashville trip, there were a handful of commercial flight options that would cost $102 to $333 per person round trip, Politico reported. So, unless Price had 51 people in his travel posse, he could have saved taxpayers money by flying commercial. ERIN TIERNAN

Flights from Puerto Rico backed up as hundreds try to flee island

Metro Puerto Rico profiles some of the hundreds of people trying to leave the island after Hurricane Maria.

DAVID CORDERO MERCADO
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

This week, the Luis Munoz Marin International Airport has been the escape valve of hundreds of people hoping to leave the island of Puerto Rico amid the devastation of Hurricane Maria.

San Juan resident Angelica Velazquez, a psychologist at the island's Department of Education, was heading to New York to wait out the crisis.

"It's a very difficult situation. I understand that all people have been in good spirits, but it is very difficult, "said Velazquez, adding that her house was flooded and her bathroom collapsed out of the side of her home.

Twelve commercial flights had departed the International Airport by Wednesday, according to spokesman Damarisse Martinez and about 20,000 people were waiting for flights since the hurricane struck. Aida Vazquez, 71, was waiting with her daughter and a grandson to board a plane bound for Florida.

"She did not want to leave me alone," said Vazquez, recalling the fury of Maria on the island. Her house in Carolina on the northeast coast of the island was not damaged, but much like thousands of Puerto Ricans, she still has no water or electricity. Vazquez said she hopes her island will "try to push forward."

The lines were for hours at Terminal A of the Luis Munoz Marin International Airport. DAVID CORDERO MERCADO

Merlie Hernandez arrived on the island, vacationing from Orlando, Florida, before Hurricane Irma and remained in Puerto Rico with her family in Bayamon.

"We could not do anything, this was really terrible chaos. We have had hurricanes, but this has been a devastating, very sad thing," said Hernandez, 44. "This has been pretty steep. Miraculously we found a ticket and we bought it fast," adding that plane tickets had gone up from $80 to $400.

Her family's plan is to get their 73-year-old father to travel to Florida as soon as possible since the roof of his home was razed by Maria. From Florida, they plan to file a complaint with the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The airport is expected to increase the number of U.S. commercial flights departing from Puerto Rico, while international flights continue to wait.

Among the hundreds leaving the island, there were also foreign students returning home to their family in the U.S.

"We are going to give it some time while they call us back to classes, then we will return," said Rosa Maria Becerra, a nursing student at the Adventist University of the Antilles.

"It's been very difficult because we had to wait to get a [phone] signal," she said. Her friend, Liliana Martinez, 21, also a nursing student, would travel there. Both are of Mexican nationality and reside in California, where they were heading.

"We leave [Thursday], we are going to sleep out here," Becerra said, adding that it was the first time they had experienced a hurricane. To reach San Juan, they said, they had to ask for help "house by house," until someone could transport them.

Justin may live to terrorize the Super Bowl again

Justin Timberlake — the original teenage heartthrob named Justin with questionable hair choices — is rumored to be performing at next year's Super Bowl halftime show. I'm sorry, what?

Timberlake last performed in 2006, when he ripped off Janet Jackson's bra-contraption and her breast was exposed. America acted like breasts were CRAZY, and Timberlake infamously threw Jackson under the proverbial bus, talking nonsense about being "shocked and appalled" at what happened, calling the "accidental" exposure "unintentional" and "completely regrettable." Mmmhmm.

Anyway, now it's 2017 and nothing matters: an insider has revealed to Us Weekly that the 36-year-old could very well be your next mega Super Bowl performer. It shall coincide nicely with his fifth solo album, which he just happens to be working on.

I want to be angrier, but I feel nothing — and also, football is not my jam — so, whatever.

I feel as aghast as you look, pal.

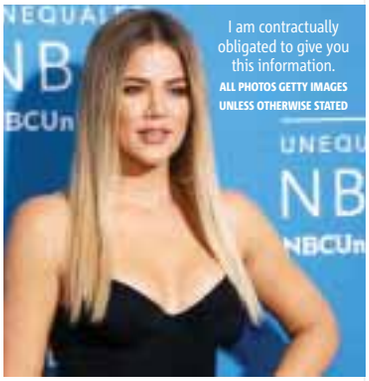
Khloe Kardashian hops on pregnancy trend

Kris Jenner must be hard at work. After news of Kim Kardashian expecting via surrogate, and the shocking and kind of unbelievable news that Kylie Jenner is expecting via her own set of reproductive organs, now Khloe Kardashian is pregnant too. Dear Dumbledore in heaven, what did we do to deserve this?

Multiple sources confirmed to People late Tuesday that Auntie KoKo, 33, was expecting with boyfriend, Tristan Thompson, 26. They've been dating since last September, which I guess seems reasonable, celebrity-wise.

"Khloe and Tristan are expecting and they are absolutely thrilled," the source tells People. "This isn't something they were in a rush to announce to the whole world, and it's only been in just the past week or so that they've felt comfortable telling most of their inner circle." Mmkay.

Hope this major life change is worth the "KUWTK" ratings boost.



I am contractually obligated to give you this information.

Jesse Williams must pay

Jesse Williams, a dude who may or may not have willfully left his partner of many years for Minka Kelly, has been ordered to pay up. According to E! News, the "Grey's Anatomy" star has been ordered to pay estranged wife Aryn Drake-Lee $160,000. Which frankly, doesn't seem like enough.

The former couple have reached a temporary agreement on custody and spousal support and Drake-Lee will reportedly be paid in three installments from the first three paychecks of Williams' most recent season of "Grey's." Cha-ching, dolla dolla bills y'all.

Spousal support wise, at least.

Despite the dubious timing of Williams new relationship, the 36-year-old has slammed cheating rumors via Jay-Z's "Footnotes for 4:44," of course. "And all of a sudden, motherf—kers are writing think-pieces that I somehow threw a 13-year-relationship, like the most painful experience I've had in my life, in the trash because a girl I work with is cute."

Well, my friend. You're the one who said it.

Julia Stiles' shotgun wedding

Julia Stiles — a woman best known for starring in teen dramas that she no longer wants to talk about — got very secretly married the other day to her fiancé, Preston J. Cook. Neat-o!

I mean, it was very secretive, until the actress used Instagram to announce that she and Cook and tied the knot over Labor Day weekend. And then had her rep confirm as much to Page Six. Which makes sense, I guess. She's very pregnant. As you know, the rhyme goes, "First comes love, then comes marriage, then comes baby in a baby carriage" not "First comes baby, then marriage? Who knows, nothing matters, marriage is a sham unless you're those two characters from 'Game of Thrones.'" The second isn't as catchy.

Congratulations on being brave enough to get married and procreate in this political climate! I've said it before and I'll say it again: Couldn't be me.

Mmkay.

"History doesn't repeat itself, but it rhymes."
MATT JUUL

Directors Ken Burns and Lynn Novick knew their "Vietnam War" documentary would be a massive undertaking when they started the project over a decade ago. But they didn't know it would resonate so well with today's divisive, political climate.

The series, which airs its 10th and final episode on Thursday night, is an 18-hour dissection of the complexities, decisions and horrors that led up to and prolonged America's involvement in Vietnam and Southeast Asia. Although it wasn't their intent to make a film that echoes what's going on with President Donald Trump's White House, the similarities are definitely striking.

Ahead, we chatted with Burns about his latest project, how today's politics mirrors the Vietnam War era and what's next for the famed filmmaker.

Are you happy with how this project turned out?
It's been stunning. We've gotten the best reviews of our professional lives on this. The PBS streaming service broke down because of the demand for it, not just here, but in Vietnam as well. We've made a Vietnamese language translation and we're finding just a huge interest there. We set out, when we made this film, to not have a political agenda, to not put our thumb on the scales. We sought funders from across the political spectrum. We sought opinions and scholarship from across the wide variety of scholarly perspectives there are. But we also have now visited media from all stripes, and we're really, super excited by the response.

How does the history of the Vietnam War serve as a prologue for what's going on in the world today?
Mark Twain is supposed to have said, "History doesn't repeat itself, but it rhymes." You can hear lots of rhymes of Vietnam in the contemporary moment. Our film is about mass demonstrations taking place all across the country against the current administration. It's about a White House in disarray, obsessed with leaks. It's about asymmetrical warfare. It's a president that is certain the press is lying, making up stories about him. It's about huge document drops of stolen, classified material that destabilize the contemporary equation. But, it's also about a political campaign accused of reaching out to a foreign power during the time of an election, and to get that foreign power to influence that election. All of this stuff happened in Vietnam.

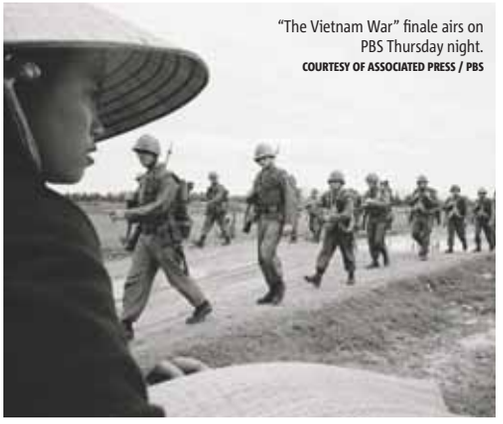
There's lots of stuff going on now that echoes, but, remember too, all those things that I listed are contemporary to the Trump administration in the last six, seven months, but we finished this film editorially in 2015, before the Iowa caucuses. We began it in 2006, and if we had finished in 2006, I'd be giving you a list of things about Vietnam that resonate with 2006. That's the gift of history.



"The Vietnam War" finale airs on PBS Thursday night.

Do you plan on tackling any other wars with future projects?
We're beginning to plan a big series on the history of the American Revolution, which is, once again, something cloaked in sentimentality and bloodless mythology. It's important to remind people that it was incredibly bloody, asymmetrical of times, a very difficult war.

Would you ever to do a series on America's involvement in Iraq and Afghanistan?
Absolutely! But I would want to get 25 or maybe 30 years out in order to be able to have the perspectives on it that you woud absolutely need.

Gender in the Trump era

The New Museum's latest exhibit defiantly explores gender fluidity at a time when being anything but a straight white man is dangerous. SAIRA KHAN

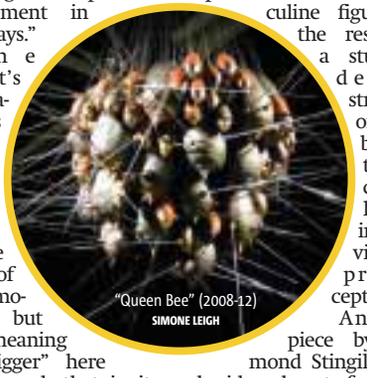
Lately, it can feel like the past century of social progress in this country never even happened, especially when it comes to gender.

We have a president who got elected despite boasts about sexually assaulting women and halted the careers of transgender servicemen and women. Women's voices have been noticeably absent from his administration, even when it comes to issues particularly key to their wellbeing and progress like healthcare and workplace protections.

Representation elsewhere, therefore, has become increasingly important. Enter Johanna Burton, the New Museum's director and curator of education and public engagement, who brought together its massive new exhibit, "Trigger: Gender as a Tool and a Weapon," opening Sept. 27 and continuing through Jan. 21, 2018.

The show, which takes over three floors of the museum, features the work of over 40 artists who challenge our notions of gender by taking us beyond the traditionally accepted male-female binary, as well as how race complicates gender issues even further.

"They're artists who circle around ideas of gender but don't make work directly about it," Burton explains. "They're incredibly political and are thinking about political engagement in new ways."



"Queen Bee" (2008-12) SIMONE LEIGH

The exhibit's title features the deliberately provocative word of our moment, but the meaning of "trigger" here is the spark that ignites change in the point of view of those who see these works.

Consider "Arroyo, 2015" by Troy Michie, splices a traditional masculine figure — the result is a stunning deconstruction of his body, thus challenging the viewer's preconceptions.

Another piece by Diamond Stingily — a braid made out of synthetic hair — begins in the lobby and winds all the way up through the fourth floor of the museum. It's a powerful illustration of how gender and power are associated with hair.

The idea that one person can embody several identities is made manifest in the shattered mirror that serves as the "screen" for a video installation by Reina Gossett and Sasha Wortzel about the life of trans activist Marsha P. Johnson.

Although "Trigger" comes on the heels of the trans bathroom debate and Trump's ban on trans people serving in the military, "artists didn't just start having these conversations right now," Burton says.

Topics relating to identity have been key to the work of several artists featured in the show, and the end result is more like looking at journal pages: "There are a lot of bodies that are represented in the show," Burton says, "but it's more about self-determination than about presentation."

NEW OPENINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW

FACEBOOK

The Aviary

Anticipation could not be hotter for this high-profile import. Run by the team behind Chicago's deliciously odd Alinea, The Aviary bar and restaurant (Japanese influenced) claims a seriously scenic 35th floor perch in the Mandarin Oriental in Columbus Circle. Cocktails range from $18-$28, with whimsical names like Boom Goes the Dynamite and Science A.F. Any place with Michelin cred that keeps its sense of humor merits a visit.
80 Columbus Circle

Magic Hour Rooftop Bar & Lounge

The city's newest — and largest — rooftop bar arrives just at the end of summer, but don't worry — this "urban amusement park" is an all-season affair. Golfing among naughty animal topiaries and riding a carousel are just some of the fun times awaiting you at Magic Hour atop the new Moxy Hotel Times Square. The playful cocktails and menu of reimagined midway food come courtesy of the Tao Group.
485 Seventh Ave.

Rice & Gold

Dale Talde cast a wide net for his full-service restaurant Rice & Gold inside the new Hotel 50 Bowery, with a menu that roves from the Philippines to China, Bangladesh to Iran, Jamaica to Mexico. Start your night at the hotel's standout rooftop bar The Crown, then head downstairs for modern fare spanning candied pork roast buns, rabbit vindaloo, whole jerk roast duck and Hong Kong-style waffles.

COMEDY

'Pulitzer Surprises'

Anyone can be nominated for a Pulitzer Prize for any reason, and based on this genius idea (which itself is pretty Pulitzer-worthy), comedians came up with "Pulitzer Surprises." The likes of Zach DiLanzo and Joanna Hausmann pitch their best submissions to the audience live onstage. They then interview a real Pulitzer winner, before the audience votes on which idea should be nominated — and their choice is entered! Sept. 29, 7:30 p.m., Union Hall, 702 Union St., Brooklyn, $6-$8, unionhallny.com

ARTS

Miyazaki Art Show

Mimicry is the purest form of flattery and there's no better way to pay tribute to the master of animation, Hayao Miyazaki, than with an exhibition of his imaginative characters, creatures and worlds. The Miyazaki Art Show will offer pieces inspired by movies like "Ponyo" and "Princess Mononoke," created by over 100 international artists, some of whom will be at the opening night party from 6-9 p.m. There's also free wine, beer and tickets are just $5. Sept. 29-Oct. 1, Spoke Art Gallery, 210 Rivington St., free-$5, spoke-art.com

BEAUTY

Miss Ogynistic Beauty Pageant

Watch male comedians try to live up to society's standards for women in the Miss Ogynistic Beauty Pageant. You know they'll hit the right notes because the show also stars former Miss America Kirsten Haglund and two former Miss New Yorks, Joanne Nosuchinsky and Iman Oubou, as well as TV's Eboni K. Williams. You'll leave not only laughing, but also patting yourself on the back: all proceeds benefit battered women's shelters and the Voices of Women Organizing Project. Sept. 30, 9:30 p.m., The Duplex, 60 Christopher St., $15-$20, theduplex.com

Vegan Food and Drink Festival

Randall's Island becomes a green playground for all things vegan this Sunday when Ecorazzi brings its massive food fest (10,000 are expected) to NYC for the first time. You won't just be noshing on meat-free eats like burgers and mac 'n' cheese from vendors like L.A.'s Southern Fried Vegan and Snackrilege from Portland — there will be craft brews and wine to sample, too. Plus games, live music and lots more entertainment.
Oct. 1, 11 a.m.-7 p.m., Randall's Island, $20, vegandrinkfest.com

MUSIC

DEMI x JBL 'Tell Me You Love Me' Pop-Up

Demi Lovato is partnering with electronics brand JBL for a pop-up to promote the singer's sixth album. DEMI x JBL will have a listening station for each track of "Tell Me You Love Me," featuring a piece of art from the album's studio shoot. There will also be murals by Lora Zombie, a music video-inspired Boomerang experience and a fan-made photo installation that will be created over the two days. Sept. 29-30, 11 a.m.-9 p.m., Highline Gallery, 446 W. 14th St., Free

SEASONAL

Loreley Oktoberfest

Cookout season isn't done yet, and the beer-centric German folk festival is just getting warmed up. Head to Loreley Restaurant and Biergarten, which kicks off a month of Oktoberfest events — including the Oktoberfest Beer Tasting Dinner ($35; Oct. 4) — with a Hofbrau keg tapping and pig roast this Saturday. And it's free! That's right, you can sip some cold brews and enjoy slow-roasted pork in the lingering afternoon heat of a long summer, then come back throughout October for other thematic tastes at Loreley. Sept. 30, noon till late, Loreley, 7 Rivington St., free, loreleynyc.com

Sushiritto tasting

Has it only been a year since sushi burritos came into our lives? It feels like a summer staple already. Come and celebrate the first anniversary of Sushirrito's arrival in NYC at their original Flatiron shop, where they'll be handing out free grilled kanpachi collars, sushi burritos and drinks, plus shaved cream by Snowdays. If you like what you eat, through the month of October Sushirrito is donating $1 for every Sumo Crunch sushi burrito to City Harvest. Oct. 1, noon-4 p.m., 12 W. 23rd St., free, sushiritto.com

DANCE

A La Calle Block Party

All ages are welcome to this afternoon of music and dance in honor of Hispanic Heritage Month put on by Ballet Hispanico. The free block party, taking place in front of the company's residence on the Upper West Side, will feature live performances by the ballet's various troupes, in addition to traditional Latino music by Los Hacheros, a half-hour dance class for adults, crafts for kids, fundraising raffles and food from local vendors. Oct. 1, 2-6 p.m., W. 89th St. between Columbus and Amsterdam aves., free, ballethispanico.org

SPICY

Chile Pepper Fest

The food's not the only thing that's spicy at the Chile Pepper Festival, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary at the Brooklyn Botanic Museum during a daylong event this weekend. Also heating up the gardens will be international jazz bands like Red Baraat and the Lost Bayou Ramblers. However, that's not to brush off the food — and beverages — which will include samples from the likes of Raaka Chocolate, Mama O's Kimchi and Hell's Kitchen Hot Sauce. Oct. 1, 11 a.m.-6 p.m., Brooklyn Botanic Museum, 990 Washington Ave., $20-$25, bbg.org

HALLOWEEN

Horror movies at Nitehawk Cinema

October is without a doubt one of the most fun months to be a regular at Nitehawk Cinema. In addition to popular series like A Nite to Dismember (films about scary books, Oct. 28) and a run of classics during Halloween at Nitehawk (Oct. 6-31), this year they've also added series like New Horror (Oct. 1-21) and Mario Brava Mondays — pretty self-explanatory! Oct. 1-31, Nitehawk Cinema, 136 Metropolitan Ave., Brooklyn, prices vary, nitehawkcinema.com

ARCHITECTURE

Archtober

While we might prefer Archtober had something to do with dry and sassy commentary, you can't rule it out when it comes to the enthusiasts attending events during Architecture and Design Month, aka October. All across NYC, Archtober events will celebrate engineering, building and decorating infrastructure with panels, walking tours and even boat rides. Oct. 1-31, various locations/prices, archtober.com

It's easy to see why Brazilian Court has been a playground for celebrities and politicians for decades. PROVIDED

Grand lady of Palm Beach

Relive Florida's glamorous past at Brazilian Court.

ED CONDRAN
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Greta Garbo was once a guest at the Brazilian Court. It's apt that the legendary actress, who craved her privacy, indulged at the world-renowned Palm Beach hotel, which provides an escape from the distractions of modern life.

At the elegant Brazilian Court, guests can enjoy privacy, comfort and an array of amenities inside the soft, storied stucco walls of the 90-year old serene, four-star oasis.

The quiet life

It's not necessary to take it to the extreme of Greta "I Want to Be Alone" Garbo, but Brazilian Court's lushly cloaked courtyard and the hotel itself are perfect for those seeking solitude. Relax at the pool under a canopy of palm trees while soaking up the sun in chaises lined with comfortable white linen — essential European charm combined with quintessential Florida.

While dining al fresco in the open courtyard, guests can practically envision the rich history of the Brazilian Court, which was a hotspot during the Roaring '20s. Garbo and fellow actor Gary Cooper and socialite Amelia Hearst vacationed at the Brazilian Court. The iconic Cary Grant danced the night away in its ballroom.

Across all the possible accommodations — ranging from a luxurious 400 square-foot studio to an 1,800-square-foot two-bedroom lanai suite with a 2.5 bath and a private patio or terrace — a runs a common thread of opulence.

Food and fun

The Brazilian Court is a destination within a destination and that includes a memorable dining experience. Daniel Boulud's award-winning Cafe Boulud, which just underwent a facelift that includes an expanded contemporary bar, offers an array of modern French cuisine. The prix fixe is appetizing: start with vichyssoise and then work your way up to the bibb lettuce salad and finish with charcuterie. The extensive wine list offers more than 400 options from around the world.

Location is also part of Brazilian Court's appeal. Set in the heart of what some have dubbed America's Riviera, guests can step off the property and directly onto pristine, white sand for the hotel's "beach experience," which includes a complimentary beach chair and umbrella.

The Brazilian Court also provides a beach bag filled with a pair of towels, two bottles of water and an array of magazines. If you need a break from the sand, retreat to the Brazilian Court's temperature-controlled pool.

High-end shopping

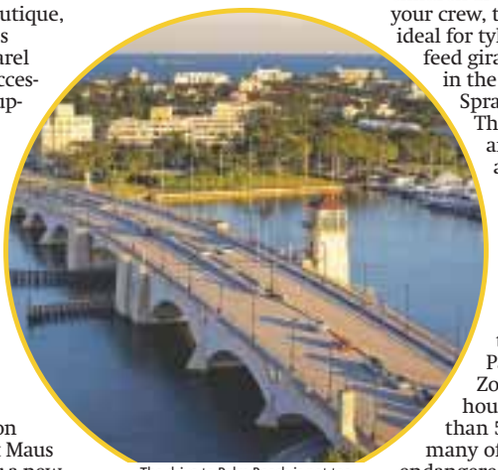
Glamorous Worth Avenue, just off the front steps of Brazilian Court, is home to some of the world's finest shopping and galleries.

St. John Boutique, which features women's apparel and fashion accessories, offers updated classics that are chic and comfortable. Other noteworthy stops include Calypso St. Barth, Shari's Place and Luisa Spagnoli.

Guys who would like to up their fashion game can visit Maus & Hoffman for a new suit or a colorful autumn shirt. There is a Jimmy Choo for those in the market for fine footwear and a Gucci for those looking for Italian crafted leather goods. There is something for every well-heeled person on striking Worth Avenue, which could be dubbed "Rodeo Drive East."

For the family

When you're in the mood to explore, consider the Palm Beach zoos. Lion Country Safari, which opened in 1967, was the country's first "cageless" zoo. It's a drive-through safari park where lions, rhinos and other animals normally in close quarters roam freely.



The drive to Palm Beach is not too shabby, either. GETTY IMAGES

The unique park, which is open every day of the year, has over 900 animals residing on the 260 acre property. If children are part of our your crew, the park is ideal for tykes. Kids can feed giraffes and play in the Safari Splash Sprayground. There is also an aviary and an animal theater.

For those who would prefer the straightforward zoo experience, there's the Palm Beach Zoo, which houses more than 550 animals, many of which are endangered. There are also a number of animal experiences along the 23-acre property. Visitors can interact with sloths, anteaters and koalas. The Palm Beach Zoo is the only place in the U.S. where you can get so close to an Australian koala bear.

Cruise the Rhine River

River boats are all the rage and these are the can't-miss sights along the Rhine.

Fodor's Travel

Amsterdam's canals need no introduction. GETTY IMAGES

Amsterdam

Most Rhine cruises either begin or end in Amsterdam, which is also a convenient gateway to Europe, not to mention one of the Netherlands' most fascinating cities. Amsterdam is famous for its canals and as the hometown of Rembrandt; a don't-miss attraction is the magnificent Rijksmuseum, which is filled with the artist's work of as well as other Dutch Masters.

If you aren't into art, then a visit to the sobering Anne Frank Huis will give you insight into the lives of the young girl and her family who sought refuge from the Nazis at the outbreak of World War II in a secret apartment above her father's business.

Cologne (Köln)

Without a doubt, the magnificent Gothic Dom (cathedral) in Cologne, Germany, is a highlight of any visit to Europe. Begun in 1248, the cathedral wasn't finished until 1880. The two towers were briefly the tallest structures on Earth. If you don't care for grand churches, then the largest city on the Rhine offers myriad opportunities to wander and shop. Try some of the local Kölsch beer. The city was mostly destroyed during World War II, so the rebuilt Old Town is actually a mishmash of old and new, but it's an atmospheric and interesting place to stroll.

Koblenz

Sitting at the confluence of the Rhine and Mosel rivers, Koblenz is famous for the grandiose Deutsches Eck (Germany Corner), a giant statue of Kaiser Wilhelm I from 1897 right at the confluence. More interesting is Festung Ehrenbreitstein, Europe's largest fortress, which stands on a towering cliff on the opposite side of the river.

Kinderdijk

If you are lucky enough to have a cruise itinerary that stops near Kinderdijk in the Netherlands, you'll have the opportunity to see the UNESCO World Heritage-designated windmills that used to pump water out of the Alblasserwaard polder, an operation now accomplished by a modern pumping station (which is also worth stopping by). Keepers still live and work in all the windmills, and the 19 windmills here are kept in working order. You can also walk along the paths and visit them (at least one interior is open on any given day).

Rüdesheim

Rüdesheim was popularized by the Romantics of the early 19th century because of its solitude. One need not worry about that any longer since the German town has long been discovered and is a busy tourist center for the wine-growing region. Still, it's a particularly charming place with medieval alleys (stroll along the Drosselgasse) and lots of weinstube for drinking. There's even a wine museum in a castle.

Winnigen

Some river cruise ships stop here, some visit as a shore excursion, but the little town of Winnigen on the banks of the Mosel in Germany is at the center of five different terraced wine-growing areas that are among the most highly prized in the Mosel Valley. Some two dozen wineries are based in Winnigen alone. You could easily do a full day just tasting delicious wines, most of which (like Winegut Rüdiger Kröber) are family-owned and don't export their vintages.

Middle Rhine Gorge

A World Heritage Site, the Middle Rhine is a 40-mile stretch of river between Koblenz and Bingen in Germany lined with historic castles, charming towns, and steep vineyards. It's a highlight of any river voyage, and many day-cruises just cover this stretch of the river.

Strasbourg

Strasbourg is one of France's most beautiful and compelling cities. Its canals might remind you of Amsterdam, its half-timbered houses of Germany yet it's a mix of all of these. There are plenty of sights, including a gorgeous cathedral, the modern European Parliament building, and plenty of museums.

Breisach

Germany's Breisach is a popular stop for most Rhine cruises, and the Stephansmunster, high on a hill overlooking the town, offers breathtaking views of the Black Forest. However, it's the Neuf-Breisach, just a few miles away on the French side of the Rhine, that may be of greater interest. A huge 17th-century fortification encompasses an entire town.

Are Mets cleaning house? Dan Warthen out as pitching coach

The longest-tenured member of the Mets' current coaching staff will not be back next season.

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The New York Mets will likely part ways with pitching coach Dan Warthen, as reported by Mike Puma of the New York Post on Wednesday.

This comes just one day after reports began to surface about the Mets not renewing the contract of manager Terry Collins after the 2017 season, which would force the team's longest-tenured manager out.

Warthen though is currently the team's longest-tenured coach, having taken over for Rick Peterson in June of 2008.

But this season has been a disastrous one for Warthen and his pitching staff, though it is difficult to assign the majority of the blame on him.

Entering Wednesday night's game against the Atlanta Braves, the Mets staff has a 5.01 team ERA, third lowest in the majors. It's a shocking stat considering this is a franchise that has been mostly built on pitching and was supposed to ride its arms to another postseason appearance this year.

Instead, injuries swept through the Mets clubhouse once again, ensuring Warthen would never have a healthy starting rotation or all together at any point this season.

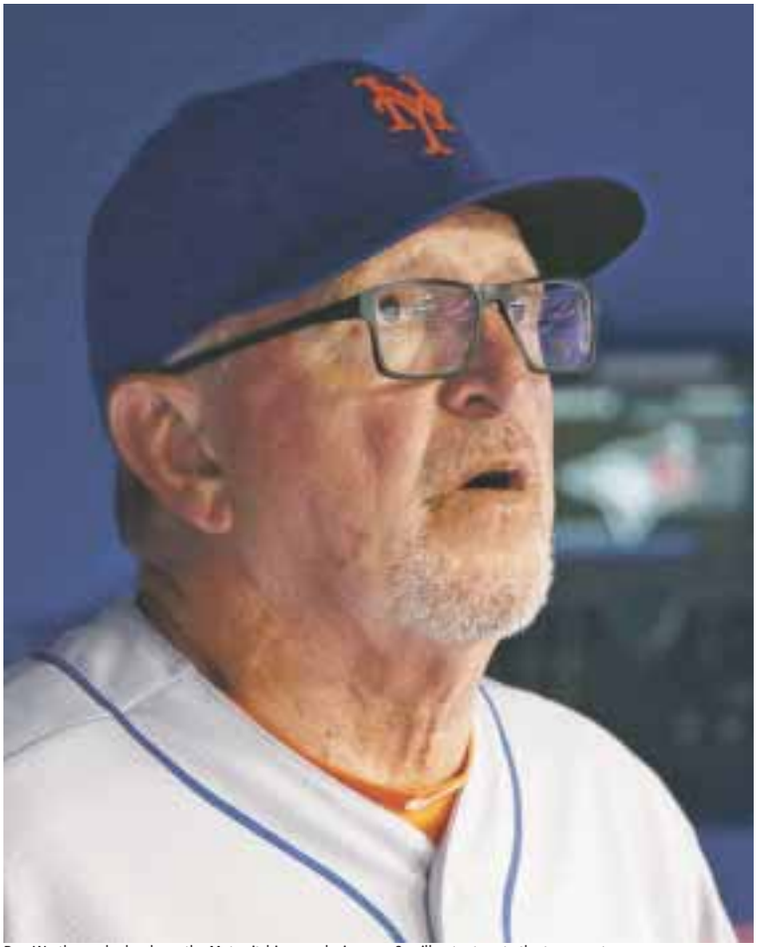
The staff's ace Noah Syndergaard tore his lat muscle less than a month into a season in which he was expected to garner Cy Young Award considerations. It was added stress for Warthen seeing as Steven Matz and Seth Lugo were battling issues during spring training while both Zack Wheeler and closer Jeurys Familia were lost in May.

Matt Harvey, who encountered a stress injury in his right shoulder after pitching through discomfort stemming from his thoracic outlet syndrome procedure last year, has been a shell of his former self as his command and velocity are seriously lacking. It's a large reason why his ERA has skyrocketed to over 6.00 this season, by far a career worst.

It left the Mets to rely on the likes of Robert Gsellman, who is second on the team with 21 starts this season, Rafael Montero, Chris Flexen, Tommy Milone and Tyler Pill. With the exception of Gsellman in a lower role, though even he has been incredibly inconsistent this season, none of those arms should be featured in an MLB rotation. There are a few names emerging to step in for Warthen once he departs.

According to Puma, Mets bullpen coach Ricky Bones and minor league pitching coordinator Ron Romanick are two in-house options. Triple-A pitching coach Frank Viola, who won 20 games with the Mets way back in 1990, will not be considered for the job, which could mean his departure from the club.

Brian Bannister, who is currently the director of pitcher development at Boston and former Oakland Athletics pitching coach Curt Young also may be considered for the position.



Dan Warthen, who has been the Mets pitching coach since 2008, will not return to the team next season. GETTY IMAGES

Pitino forced to take leave after FBI probe

The legendary coach, once again caught amid a scandal, was forced to leave the University of Louisville on Wednesday.

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

University of Louisville men's basketball coach, New York City native and former New York Knicks head coach Rick Pitino has been placed on administrative leave by the school on Wednesday.

Due to contractual restrictions, he is not yet fired, though his lawyer, Steve Pence, admitted to the Courier-Journal that this basically means that he will be terminated.

The school also reportedly fired athletic director Tom Jurich, who was initially asked to fire Pitino by the school. When Jurich refused, he was terminated as well. However, a Louisville spokesman stated the reports surrounding Jurich were false.

The moves by the university stem from an investigation by the U.S. Attorney's office in New York City which ended with 10 men being indicted, including Adidas executive Jim Gatto, on fraud and corruption charges on Tuesday.

These men used bribes to illegally sway top high school prospects toward the school of their choice. It was Gatto that landed Pitino and Louisville in trouble as he offered $100,000 to an All-American prospect to join the school, which had an Adidas apparel deal.

Pitino and his program already were not in the good graces of the NCAA. The Cardinals were put on probation and forced to abandon their 2013 national championship because a former staff member hired escorts to strip for and have sex with recruits.

The 65-year-old has been the coach at Louisville for 16 seasons and ranks third on the school's all-time win list. Besides the one vacated national championship that was the program's third ever, he led the school to three Final Fours.

He was inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in 2013 as the only coach to win two national championships with two different programs (Kentucky in 1996, UL in 2013). But his career could be over — at least at the prominent Division I level — after his connections to such a major scandal.

NFL power rankings | by Luke Miller

No. 1

Chiefs
3-0 (W vs. LAC)

In a week full of shockers and near-upsets, the top team held serve. Kareem Hunt's fourth quarter 69-yard touchdown run to ice the game gave him a 50-plus yard score in each of his first three career games. He's the first player in NFL history to do that.

No. 2

Falcons
3-0 (W vs. DET)

The secondary is still a concern, but they kept Detroit out of the end-zone for most of the day and when it mattered most. Matt Ryan and the offense recovered from some early interceptions to fire on all cylinders. The Falcons are one of only two undefeated teams left standing.

No. 3

Patriots
2-1 (W vs. HOU)

What's that? Tom Brady isn't done? Color us shocked. Brandin Cooks was inducted into the New England offense with five catches for 144 yards and two touchdowns. Both scores came in the second half, including the game winner and it's ensuing two point conversion (which Cooks also caught.)

No. 4

Packers
2-1 (W at CIN)

While it wasn't the domination many were expecting from the Packers against the Bengals, they came out on the right end of this nailbiter. Do Aaron Rodgers' receivers grow on trees? Perhaps Geronimo Allison is about to take the NFL by storm. Or perhaps the Bengals can't tackle.

No. 5

Redskins
2-1 (W vs. OAK)

Washington did it to the Raiders without Jordan Reed playing or Terrelle Pryor contributing. Since a shaky Week 1, this team has turned in two great performances, including that road victory over the Rams that looks pretty impressive after we see what they're capable of.

No. 6

Raiders
2-1 (L vs. WAS)

Derek Carr passed 100 yards...eventually. One receiver even made it over 10 yards receiving and his name wasn't Amani Cooper or Michael Crabtree. Marshawn Lynch held to 18 yards on the ground. Seven first downs, 128 total yards, this offense had better get things sorted, sooner rather than later.

No. 7

Lions
2-1 (L vs. ATL)

Detroit finally moves up in the rankings despite losing due to a ton of less-than-impressive performances at the top of the list and the fact that they sort-of beat the Falcons, for a little while.. Unfortunately, we will all have to wait until Monday night of Week 9 to see them face the Packers.

No. 8

Broncos
2-1 (L vs. BUF)

The Broncos aren't the first team to blow a game going West to East at 1 p.m. They'll be back in more comfortable confines next week facing the Raiders at home. A win their would signal to Oakland and the Chiefs that not only are the Broncos back, they never really left.

No. 9

Cowboys
2-1 (W at AZ)

The Cowboys absorbed some early troubles to thunder back behind Dak Prescott and a will-not-be-denied touchdown by Dez Bryant. Prescott looked flawless by the end of the game Monday, running the read-option up and down the field and complimenting Ezekiel Elliott.

No. 10

Titans
2-1 (W vs. SEA)

After watching Derrick Henry steal the headlines (and many thought, soon the starting role) over the first two weeks, DeMarco Murray rebounded to the tune of 115 rushing yards in Week 3, most of them coming on a 75-yard touchdown that put the Titans up 30-14 late.

BEST OF THE REST

11. Eagles (2-1)	16. Seahawks (1-2)	21. Bears (1-2)
12. Steelers (2-1)	17. Panthers (2-1)	22. Bills (2-1)
13. Jaguars (2-1)	18. Rams (2-1)	23. Ravens (2-1)
14. Vikings (2-1)	19. Saints (1-2)	24. Cardinals (1-2)
15. Buccaneers (1-1)	20. Texans (1-2)	25. Colts (1-2)

Aries Take care of matters that involve red tape or bureaucracy. Once you put business behind you, it will be much easier to relax and enjoy your favorite pastimes.

Taurus Participate in activities and events that you find exhilarating. Reaching out to people who share your interests will lead to new possibilities.

Gemini You may not like structure, but right now it's what's required to bring greater stability to your life. Deal with responsibilities using practical applications and common sense.

Cancer Partnerships are highlighted. You may not agree all the time, but discussing how you can best accommodate everyone's interests and objectives will be a good place to start.

Leo Do what needs to be done. Put some effort into getting ahead and setting yourself up for future advancement. Change can be good if you go about it intelligently.

Virgo Make plans to spend time with people who matter in your life or who inspire you to be the best you can be. A networking event could be promising.

Libra Err on the side of caution when dealing with family matters or concerns that could affect your financial stability. Act only when you have all the facts.

Scorpio Take action and get involved in causes, projects or anything that will motivate you to bring about the changes you want to see happen in your home or at work.

Sagittarius Getting together with someone from your past or making amends with someone you had a disagreement with will make you feel better about moving forward.

Capricorn A partnership looks promising. Making a commitment to someone or renewing your vows is favored. Money or a gift will come from an unexpected source.

Aquarius Physical fitness, proper diet and a healthy routine will make you feel good and help you more ably handle stress and carry out your responsibilities.

Pisces Plan something special with someone you love or volunteer to get involved in a cause you believe in. Make your voice heard and rewards will come. EUGENIA LAST
